

SHAWN M. PECK

Throughout my involvement in Pennsylvania's juvenile justice system, I have worked with service providers, probation departments and state-level initiatives to improve services for youth. I have implemented evidence-based curricula as a senior agency trainer for Aggression Replacement Training® (ART®). I have held management positions where I led action plans across various departments of the organization. I have created resources for all levels of staff development to include: mentorship for line staff and supervisors as well as on-the-job training programs. In addition, I developed leadership training for senior management in other sites and facilitated monthly conference calls to review progress within their teams. As part of the organization's professional development process, I assessed the strengths and weaknesses of staff and collaborated with their direct supervisors in order to create professional development plans. Currently, I assess services through a meta-analytic tool and apply the research findings to improve the quality of service delivery. I assist service providers and probation departments through the performance improvement process in order to improve recidivism outcomes for youth. I am currently enrolled at Penn State University where I am working towards a Master of Public Administration. I aspire to influence state and federal policy makers on the benefits of evidence-programs with the hope of improving the quality and sustainability of such programs.
