Effects of Tobacco & ENDS Policies on Patterns of Adolescent ENDS Use. This project will merge tobacco policy and ENDS-specific policy data from the American Nonsmokers' Rights Foundation (ANRF) with the Population Assessment of Tobacco and Health (PATH) and from the U.S. Census to evaluate effects of policies on patterns of adolescent ENDS and related tobacco use (initiation, prevalence, duration, frequency, and cessation).

R01 AA019606 PI: Jennifer Maggs
“Alcohol Use across the Life Span.” Based on a life course developmental epidemiological perspective, this project will estimate the prevalence of alcohol initiation in early adolescence, test hypotheses of mediation and moderation of risk for early use, model changes in heavy drinking across adulthood in tandem with changing social roles, and examine linear and “J-shaped” curves linking adult alcohol patterns with midlife health and social role functioning.

“Early Work Experiences and the Transition to Adulthood.” This grant is a NICHD Mentored Research Scientist Development Award (K01) in Population Research. The first goal of the project is to pursue coursework in demography and mentorship with scholars in demography, sociology, criminology, and developmental psychology. The second goal of the project is to study whether paid work during adolescence is a cause, consequence, or correlate of changes in health and well-being, risk behavior, and achievement during the transition to adulthood.
